Working together to improve recruitment in Devon

NHS organisations in Devon have come together to produce a series of recruitment films and a new website to promote medical careers across the county. The six films feature staff in who work across NHS services, including Juliet, an oncology consultant at the Royal Devon. Over the next few months, the films will be promoted online and through social media so please like and share them if you see them. For more information, visit the One Devon website.

Supporting our staff to help money go further

We know that things are really tough for so many people, including our staff of all roles and grades, and so we support them with financial difficulties. We have a range of widely-available financial wellbeing support, information and ideas to help colleagues make their money go further

We want to do everything we can to ensure that our patients can leave hospital in a timely, comfortable and well-planned way, as we know that once people are well enough, the best place for them to recover is in the comfort of their own home. Our patients are only discharged when they no longer need hospital care and it is safe to do so.

If you have a loved one in hospital, please have a read of our open letter, or please share this with anyone who would find it useful.
